PRESIDENT CHARGES LOBBY USES MONEY

Appeals to People to Help Check Efforts to Defeat Tariff Provisions.

Is Confident Of Passage. The President still is confident that the Senate will pass the tariff bill in substantially the same form as it passed the House, despite the efforts of the sugar lobby. He will not admit that there is basis for the assertions of the iomestic cane and beet sugar growers that their industry will be ruined by the Administration tariff bill, which provides for free sugar within three years. He holds the objections raised by the Porto Rico sugar industries to be equally baseless. The great ourse of the tariff, the President told a recent caller, is that it lets everything drift and rest on the oars, and that it takes away from the grower and refiner the away from the grower and refiner the incentive for improving his process. He believes that better methods of raising and handling the product are needed more than a tariff, and he has impressed gressional leaders with his convic-that the reduced tari fron sugar and other agricultural products as well, will not seriously affect these industries if they improve their methods of handling the products. The President holds that there is nothing so backward as the organization of agriculture as a husiness.

To Consider Currency Bill. The President believes that the tariff bill is certain of passage in a form which he can approve by signing the measure. Acting on this belief, he is said to have planned to devote much said to have planned to devote much of his time this week to improving the tentative draft of the currency bill, submitted by Congressman Carter Glass, who was aided in preparing the proposed measure by Prof. Parker Willis. The President has expressed the hope that this week will find the bill more or less definitely formed, and the details will then be completely worked out. He has indicated that he will not make anything public as to the provisions of the bill until he knows he has a bill that will "hold water."

No public announcement of the provisions of the measure is expected until the President sends his message to Congress, which he plans to do as soon as the House committees are all appointed, and that body is organized to take up currency legislation.

This week the President will have conferences with several leaders of Congress. The first of these will be late this afternoon, when Senator Owen, chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, will have a conference on the currency question with the President at the White House.

Miss Nancy Lane Talks Phonograph Duet | WILSON RECEIVES With President

Little Miss Nancy Lane, daughter of Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, is to speak with President Wilson in a message of reassurance to the Indians of each of the 169 tribes in the continental United States. Her voice, with that of the President, will carry to the Indians by phonograph, the record being in the possession of Joseph K. Dixon, director of the Rodman Wanamaker exposition to the Indians.

Miss Nancy became acquainted with the Indians when Chief Plenty Coups and other chieftains of the Sioux and Blackfeet came on a visit to her father's office, shortly after the inaugural. She was much impressed with Plenty Coups and has since been much interested. Saturday afternoon the record of a speech to the Indians from President Wilson and the Secretary was being made, when Miss Nancy, who is just turned twelve, stepped up and made this little speech of her own devising, to go to the friends of Plenty Coups:

"My friends the Indians have not been well treated. Now, under the Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, you shall be treated as well

As soon as said it was a part of the record, with the President's speech, and the President, declaring it to be fine, said that it should be a part of the permanent record, which is to be used in urging the Indians to become good and prosperous citizens.

Several contracts were exempted from the decree. These exemptions will be the basis for further litigation.

Today's decree dismisses the anti-trust rosecution brought by the Government in 1910 against a dozen rattroads and coal companies, except to find that the coal companies, except to find that the 65 per cent contracts are in violation of the Sherman law. This finding was made by the Supreme Court last winter. Under the 65 per cent contracts, the railroads agreed to buy all coal produced by allied mines, paying 65 per cent of the market price on the Atlantic seaboard for such coal. The railroads assumed the freight costs. These contracts were held by the Supreme Court to be a violation of the Sherman law.

The court's embargo against the 65 per cent contracts is said to entail revolution in conducting the coal business. It forces the allied mining companies to compete in the open market with the "independents." After dismissing the principal charges of the collusion and monopoly against the railroads and coal companies, except as to the 65 per cent contracts, the court today exempted from operation of the decree as to these contracts the following:

Agreements for the purchase of coal between the Pennsylvania Coal Comquehanna and Western Coal Company. The original prosecutions brought by former Attorney General Wickersham, charging the several railroad and coal companies with a general conspiracy to monopolize the coal trade, were dismissed today, except as to the 65 per cent contracts.
